DAN RIVER LAND AGENCY.

I HAVE established at Danville, Virginia. An agency for the sale and purchase of REAL ESTATE in the valley of the Dan, the fine country back of Danville and all the surrounding Counties of Virginia and North Carolina.

Agencies of this description are very much needed, to call the attention of strangers to our section, which, for natural advantages of soil and climate, water power and mineral resources, is surpassed by no other portion of the South, and which offers the finest field for investment that was ever presented to those who wish to engage in farming, manufacturing, mining, or speculation. In short, I believe we have the finest country in the United States, and it will be the object of the Dan River Land Agency to bring its attractions prominently before the world. Persons residing in this portion of Virginia and North Carolina, will find it to their advantage to put their lands under my control. They shall be advertised extensively in every part of the United States, and no pains or expense will be spared to effect a sale.

CHARLOTTE—ITS LADIES—ITS FESTIVAL.

From our Charlotte Correspondent:
For some time past our friends from the country have not come in to see us as usual. The corn and cotton must be worked out, and there's nothing like a good dry spell for killing grass, if a little hoe work be thrown in to help out. Charlotte has been at no loss however. If times ever seem to be a little dull up here—Charlotte throws herself upon her own resources and publishes a festival. A lively time may surely be counted on then.

THE MASONIC FESTIVAL.

The Masons fought it out on this line 3 nights last week and pouched more than $2000 of clear money. It is hardly worth while to give you a detailed account of the matter. Of course we had any quantity of cedar work; fancy articles; the prettiest imaginable cake; ice cream; soda water; wine punch and sherry cobbler; and natural wells of lemonade and other et ceteras of that kind.

JACOB'S LADDER.

We had Jacob's ladder too. It rested upon terra firma and reached upwards at an angle of about 78 degrees. On the ladder were angels done up in wax and illusion. I am not sure that they were descending or ascending. But they seem to have been so struck by the fair spectacle below that they couldn't get any further than mid-heaven.

WHERE WAS JACOB?

It is said that Jacob had been engaged for the occasion but failed to come to time. The strength of the enterprise however did not lie in bodies celestial but in certain other bodies more suited to human nature's daily wants. Just how they dispensed viands of every kind. How certain matronly looking ones displayed their ham and turkey and chicken salad, and seemed to have their patrons chiefly among those who had past the romantic age. And how certain others—who themselves almost good enough to eat—would ply a fellow with cake and punch—and 2 kinds of ice cream and various kinds of tit-bits—not omitting their efforts till they had made him shell out his last item of fractional currency and feel sorry that he had no more to shell out. These things I say—it is not necessary that I should mention particularly. They only differed from the same performances in other places, in being done in Charlotte style, and you can appreciate that only by seeing for yourself.

THE LADIES.

Success in any enterprise, Mr. Editor, depends upon having that enterprise in proper hands. Did you ever think of that, or hear any one advance the idea before? It is so, sir, and our people understand it. One of our cardinal principles is to enlist the ladies, whom we find to be foremost in every good word and work. Since last Christmas they have engineered no less than 5 festivals: 4 for the churches, and this last for the Masons. Each was a success and some of them beyond the calculations of the most sanguine. During this last Spring some of our men tried to get the people to vote $60,000 in aid of a railroad. The women had nothing to do with it and it fell through.

THE JERSEY WAGON.

Now, Mr. Editor, there is a Jersey wagon which frequently moves along our street at the heels of some of the best stock in Wadsworth's stables. Whose turnout this it is needless to say. It is well known in this community, and if such an enterprise as a festival is on hand and this establishment is seen moving in that direction while the preparations are making—we don't feel uneasy as to the result. The only question is how much will be raised. Nothing like "utilizing" the right agent as the insurance men would say.

THE CIRCUS.

We have just had a circus here, with few animals, to catch the church people. Col. Ames, the Master Spirit. There was the usual display of band wagons—ponies with superincumbent monkeys—then two camels and an infinitesimal elephant—then a cage with no animals on the inside, but 2 on top with a woman as supervisor—then a considerable interval of dust—and—another cage; and any quantity of Africa and young America in about equal proportion on the flank and the rear. I don't know what success the show had; but I rather think that so far as most of our young folks are concerned, the masonic festival of the week before had drawn their fire.

Now don't forget the lesson I wish to impress upon you. If you wish to build a paragon, or include a church, or do any other christian work—get the matrons and the maids on your side.
Yours—
CHARLOTTE

THE BACHELOR'S BUTTONS.

Some years ago, when I was a young man, and dreaming (as some single men do) of double bliss yet destined to arrive, I went to a concert in Music Hall, Boston. Music is poetically and proverbially "the food for love," and in my sentimental state consumed a great deal of it; not that I had any object in view. Mine was abstract love; I cultivated it; I increased my stock, so that I might have a good deal of tender passion on hand, whenever I saw an eligible opportunity of investing it.

Well, to return to the concert, it was crowded to excess, and the rush, on leaving, to gain cabs and carriages was very great. I wore, on this memorable night, a blue coat with brass buttons, and flattered myself there were worse looking men in the room. I say candidly that I admired myself, and next to myself the other party I was struck with, was a girl with black hair and black eyes, and dark skin, who sat with some young friends a few forms distant. I hoped she noticed me with my blue coat and brass buttons. I looked at her often enough to attract her attention to both; and being, as my friends would say, in a rather spongy state, worked myself to a towering passion—of love.

But how was I to come to the object of my admiration, for I was as diffident as devoted, "as shy as I was vain," as an over candid friend once said. Hail Columbia, which concluded the concert, surprised me, as unprepared at my first glance, to improve the occasion, and the company were shoaling out, while I stood gazing at my love at first sight. She and her party eddied for a while by the inner concert room, and were then drawn out into the retiring current and lost to view. I followed quickly after, lest I should lose forever all opportunity of identifying my idol; but alas! the lights in the outer corridor were few and far between, so no glimpse of my star could I get: I pushed and elbowed my way fiercely through the crowd, with a view of getting to the outer door before my fair one's party emerged, and thus gain one more sight of my sweetheart.

"Hang it!" I muttered impatiently, as I felt a tug at my coat tail, and was instantly conscious of one of my hind buttons having hitched in some lady's dress; my progress was suddenly arrested. "How provoking," said I, as I was brought to a stand, for I could not push on without losing a button, or tearing a dress; "how provoking the modern fashion, a lady now has as many hoops and tentacles about her apparel as a sea anemone."

It was with some irritation that I stopped to undo the button, but my hurry made the task more difficult, and instead of undoing, I only bungled and more twisted the loop around the button.

"Please let me try," said the lady herself, as I bungled over the business, she ungloved her hand, it was a sweet white hand, so I looked at her face. Stars and garters, but it was my fair one, the black hair and dark eyes I was in pursuit of. As she stooped over the entangled button, a slight blush tinted her cheek. Oh, it was delicious. I hoped she would never undo the loop, and indeed I thought she never would, for her fingers were twitching nervously, and my heart was beating audibly; I tried to help her; our fingers met.

"Please to make way there," shouted a gruff voice behind. We were blocking up the passage; was there ever such a lucky spot for entanglement?

"You hinder the people from going out; Anna," exclaimed one of her companions, with some asperity; "plague upon the tiresome loop, why don't you break it;" and suiting the action to the word, the speaker leaned forward, caught the sleeve of the beautiful friend's dress in one hand and my coat tail in the other and giving a quick and decided tug, severed us.

The crowd bore on, and we separated, not however, before I gave my "star" a look which I intended to speak volumes. I thought she did not seem conscious of my meaning—our eyes met; I knew she was the only consolation left me, for immediately afterwards I lost her and her party to view in the darkness outside.

That night I scarcely closed my eyes, thinking of my "bright particular star," and by what means I should find her out. I knew little of the city, which was a large one, and to expect to know the name of my fair one by mere description, was hopeless as there doubtless must be a great many with black hair and dark eyes, within the "bill of mortality," as elsewhere.

My love grew more violent in the course of the day, but tired out at last with my search, I returned to the hotel, and took out my portmanteau, to feed my flames even with the contemplation of the inanimate button that had detained the black eyed divinity so long. It was with no little delight that I now discovered what did not before catch my eye—a fragment of the silk loop of her dress, still adhered to the button around the shank. I pressed it to my lips; it was like a kiss—and I stopped to disentangle it from the tangle of brass as though it was a tress of my loved one's hair, when something chinked in my pocket. Supposing I had left some money there, for in my perturbation and excitement, I omitted to search the coat on taking it off the night before, I then thrust my hand in to my pocket. Gracious me! What do I behold, what did I take out?—a gold chain and bracelet!

You could have brained me with my lady's fan. I saw at a glance how matters stood—in the excitement and hurry of undoing the loop from my button, the lady had undone the clasp of her own bracelet, which had not unnaturally fallen into the coat skirt with which she was engaged, and doubtless on missing it, instead of regarding me in a romantic light, she put it down that I was one of the swell mob, and purposely entangled myself in her dress to rob her of her jewelry.

Here was anti-heroic position to find myself in, when I wished to be considered the most devoted of knights, to be the most expert of pickpockets. Was ever an honest lover in such a plight?—And to make it worse I could not see how I was to escape from the inevitable dilemma. I must go down to the grave remembered in the dear one's mind as the nefarious purloiner of her bracelet. To find her out was impossible, but a bright idea struck me, as my eyes lighted on the coffee room table. I sat down and wrote an advertisement in the following words:

"If the lady whose dress got entangled in a gentleman's coat button, in leaving the concert on Wednesday, will call at or send to the Tremont Hotel, she will hear something to her advantage."

There; I thought, as I gave the advertisement to the boy, and five shillings for the insertion in the paper, there it will not give me a clue to the escape from a very unpleasant drama, and the same time to learn who my enchantress is, the fate most indeed be very unpropitious.

My plans being thus far adopted, I ordered dinner, and waited patiently or impatiently, the appearance of the newspaper next morning. It was brought to me damp from the press, and when I read in the glory of large type an interesting announcement—but my stars, what an advertisement followed it in the very same column! I only wonder that my hair did not stand on end as I read as follows:

$20 REWARD.—Lost or stolen at the concert at the Hall, a Gold chain Bracelet. It is thought to have been taken from the lady's arm by a pickpocket of gentlemanly appearance, who wore a blue coat with brass buttons, who kept near the lady on leaving the hall.

Any one giving such information as will lead to the recovery of the bracelet, or to the capture of the thief, (if it was stolen,) will receive the above reward on applying to No. 7, Cambridge place.

Here was a plight—to be advertised in the public papers as a pickpocket, when my only crime was like Othello's that of.

"Loving not wisely but too well."

My determination, however, was quickly adopted. I went up stairs, put on the identical blue coat so accurately described, and taking the paper in hand proceeded to Cambridge Place.

I knocked at the door and asked the servant who answered, the name of the family. Having heard it I said, "Is Miss Raymond in?"

"Yes, sir," replied the servant woman, "who shall I say wants her?"

"Tell her the pickpocket with a gentlemanly address and blue coat with brass buttons, who stole her bracelet, is here and wishes to return it to her."

The woman started from me as though I was mad, but on repeating my request to her, she went and delivered the message. Soon there came out, not my fair one, but her stalwart brother.

"That," said I, handing him the bracelet, "is Miss Raymond's property, and though as you perceive I wear the brass buttons, and am flattered to think that my manners are gentlemanly, I am bound in candor to say I am no pickpocket."

"Then, sir, you shall have the reward," said the brother taking out his purse.

"No," I replied, "for strange as though it may appear, though am I no pickpocket, I stole the lady's bracelet."

The man looked puzzled, but when I told the truth and pointed to the advertisement in the same paper as a proof I did not want the property, he laughed at the whole story, and did not wonder that at his sister's description of the gentlemanly pickpocket.

It is said that one of the most powerful remedies for bots in horses is a strong decoction of sage tea, made very sweet. It dislodges the bots instantly.

Ticks on Sheep.—Mr. Butcher feeds, in the fall, his sheep with sulphur, mixing a tablespoonful of it with a pint of feed. Feeds them twice a week for three or four weeks, and at shearing time no ticks are to be found.

The Japanese plant cucumbers in drills three or four feet apart and bush them like peas with tall brushwood, arching the tops together. It saves space, avoids tramping on the vines in picking and secures a uniform development of the fruit on all sides.

LICE ON CATTLE AND COLTS.—The afflicted will find the following an effective cure, while quite harmless to the patient and operator:—Mix lard and carbolic acid in the proportions of an ounce of acid to a gallon of lard. Rub thoroughly on all parts infested. —H. W. Davenport.

PRESERVING GRAPES.—The French are said to have a method of preserving grapes by dipping the thoroughly ripe bunches in lime water having the consistency of cream. When wanted for the table, immerse them in hot water and the lime will be removed.

APPLAS FOR STOCK.—Some people appear to have an idea that apples are of little value for stock. That is not an opinion. We have fattened many a pig on apples and we know they made a savory and palatable mess. We find our friend, Levi Barlett, of Warner, N. H., agrees in this opinion. He has been feeding his horse, cows, sheep and swine on apples cut up in a root cutter, and finds the cows gave a larger yield of milk and richer cream, nearly equal to that from the best of grass. He goes farther and is inclined to think it more profitable in the long run, to raise good late keeping apples for feeding stock than in grow roots for the same purpose. We cannot quite endorse this idea, but we fully believe in the value of apples for cows and sheep, and would not deprive them of them on any account, if we had them to spare. —Mass Ploughman.

But few people are aware that they do wagon and carriage more injury by greasing too plentifully than in any other way. A well made wheel will endure common wear from ten to twenty-five years, if care is taken to use the right kind and proper amount of grease; but if this matter is not attended to, they will be used up in five or six years. Lard should never be used on a wagon, for it will penetrate the hub and work its way out around the tenons of the spokes, and spoil the wheel. Tallow is the best lubricator for wood axle-trees, and castor oil for iron.

Just grease enough should be applied to the spindle of a wagon to give it a light coating; this is better than more, for the surplus will all work out at the ends, and be forced by the shoulder band and nut washers into the hub around the outside of the boxes.

To oil an iron axle tree, first wipe the spindle clean with a cloth wet with spirits of turpentine, and then apply a few drops of castor oil near the shoulder and end. One teaspoonful is sufficient for the whole.

Rural American.

Spitt.

"Don't care much 'bout the bugs," said Mr. Swinks, "but the truth is, I haven't got the blood to spare."

On learning the result of the late election, a Richmond dandy exclaimed, "Wake up snakes, Juny-bugs about."

"Attention, men!" said a corporal to a division of recruits. "When your names are called you say here, and he who is not here, say absent."

There is nothing half so beautiful, half so intrinsically good, as a nice girl. She is the sweetest flower in the path of life. Therefore, do not pluck her roughly.

"Harry, you ought not to throw away nice bread like that; you may want it some day." "Well, mother, would I stand any better chance of getting it then if I should eat it now?"

"Mollie," said one girl to another, "I'm real glad I have no beau now that Peter's got mad." "Why so?" asked the other. "Oh, 'cause I can now eat as many onions as I please."

A farmer saw an advertised receipt to prevent wells and cisterns from freezing. He sent his money and received in answer: "Take in your well or cistern on cold nights, and keep it by the fire."

A Frenchman, wishing to speak of the cream of the English poets, forgot the word in his enthusiasm, and said: "The butter of poets." An Englishman remarked that he had fairly churned up the English language.

"You would be very pretty indeed," remarked a gentleman patronizingly to a young lady, "if your eyes were only a little larger." "My eyes may be very small, sir," replied the indignant maiden, "but such people as you don't fill them, by a great deal."

Said a Baptist to a Methodist: "I don't like your church government. It isn't simple enough. There's too much machinery about it." "It is true," replied the Methodist, "we have more machinery than you; but then, you see, it don't take near so much water to run it."

A story is told of a soldier, in the army whose only fault was that of drunkenness. His colonel remonstrated with him: "Tom you are a bold fellow and a good soldier, but you get drunk." "Colonel," replied Tom, "how can you expect all the virtues of humanity combined for sixteen dollars a month?"

The art of saying disagreeable things in a pretty way has been brought to the greatest perfection by French women. The other day two "dearest friends" were in conversation. "My dear," said the first, "do you know that your husband told me last night that my cheeks were like roses?" "Yes, love, I know he did," he spoke of it afterward, and said it was a great pity they were yellow roses."

A CHEAP BAROMETRE.—A Western paper is responsible for the following:—It is said that a cup of coffee is a sure barometer, if you allow the sugar to drop to the bottom of a cup and watch the bubbles arise without disturbing the coffee. If the bubbles collect in the middle the weather will be fine; if they adhere to the cup, forming a ring, it will be rainy; and if the bubbles separate without assuming any fixed position, changeable weather may be expected.

The Hot Springs seems to have shot ahead finely, its numbers having reached two hundred last week—greatly in excess of any previous season so early a period. The Healing, too, is flourishing. The Hot has made some remarkable cures of late years. We met a worthy gentleman a day or two since who had been bowed with rheumatism, whose agonies he had suffered for years, but was now restored completely, erect, and free from pain. The Hot had relieved him, and he was very happy.

There is a large number in the Sweet Springs valley. The Old Sweet has an unusual large company, and its entertainment is superb. The Sweet Chalybeate, always popular, is quite lively. The lovely valley will have more of life and fashion this year than any since the war.

Upon the average, the prospect is that the Springs will do very well. They deserve to be well supported, and thus far the heat of the summer seems to be compensating for their advantage. —Richmond Dispatch.

GRAVES' NEW WAREHOUSE!
LAURENCE DANVILLE, VA.

WE take pleasure in informing our friends that we have completed our
which, for convenience of situation, construction and its fine Sky-light cannot be excelled in this Market. We have an Excellent Wagon-Yard, where your stock will be perfectly secure. We have also, a good house for our customers to sleep in.

We have associated with us, Mr. Wm. T. Law, so long and favorably known to the planters around Danville, as to need no recommendation.

We take pleasure in returning our thanks to our friends for the very liberal support we have received, and hope by prompt personal attention to our business, to continue to merit and receive the patronage of our friends and the public.

WM. P. GRAVES,
THOS. R. McDEARMAN,
WM. T. LAW.

CAUTION! WE desire to warn the dealers in, and consumers of snuff generally, that since the war, certain tobacco manufacturers, being unable to find a market for their snuffs, felt themselves obliged to counterfeits the general appearance of our packages, and imitate our Trade Marks, so that a close inspection is necessary to detect the spurious article from the genuine, and others going so far as to assert that "Lorillard's Snuff is no longer made."

In making this publication we desire to warn the public against the impositions practiced upon them as they are the losers thereby. It will be found upon comparison that Lorillard's Snuff is "far ahead" of all others, being made of the best stock, after an original and secret process known only to ourselves, besides possessing great age, strength and pungency, and is warranted not to contain any dangerous or deleterious substance, which cannot be said of the many worthless articles put on sale by others. The best is the cheapest in the end. A circular will always be mailed on application. In ordering please specify if East Snuff (High Coast), or Fresh Snuff (Easts Branch) is desired.

TO THOSE SUFFERING WITH PULMONARY DISEASE.

DR. THOMAS H. MILES, continues to treat Thoracic diseases by Topical Medication, on Catarrh of the air passages, combined with appropriate general remedies, as practiced by the late Prof. Green, of New York. The success attending this method of treating diseases of the lungs, is unparalleled, and the feasibility of the operation generally conceded. This treatment is almost a specific for Bronchitis, Laryngitis, Incipient Tuberculosis and Asthma. Numerous testimonials can be adduced from those who have been entirely relieved by the operation. His address is Mount Carmel, Halifax county, Va.

Near Yanceyville, Caswell co., N. C.
April, 1899.

This is to certify that I have been suffering for several years with chronic Bronchitis; attended with all the symptoms of incipient Consumption; during this period, I had frequent hemorrhages from the lungs. I also suffered greatly from enlarged Tonsils. I tried the usual remedies in such cases, but without satisfactory results. I finally concluded to try Dr. Miles' treatment of cauterizing the air passages by injection. I remained under his treatment for six weeks; rejoice to say that I believe my lungs are entirely relieved. I will say that excision of the tonsils added greatly to my relief. I most cheerfully recommend this treatment to all persons similarly afflicted.

A MOST WONDERFUL AND SECURE

INVENTION!

New Method of Washing Clothes without Labor.

THE AUTOMATIC

Clothes Washer and Boiler.

Awarded the highest Testimonial wherever Exhibited.

Rev. M. W. STAPLES, Inventor and Patentee

THIS BOILER is self-acting, and dispenses entirely with labor and the waste of clothes. The inside and steam by the action of fire, drive through tubes, poured upon the clothes, and forced through the fabric with astonishing rapidity, cleaning it perfectly without any rubbing. It has been thoroughly tested, and pronounced unequalled as a Clothes Washer, by those who have used it.

All fabrics, from the finest laces to the bed-blanket can be washed perfectly and with ease and without the aid of the rubbing board. For Flannels it is invaluable, as the rubbing, rolling and pressing process usually necessary, fail them more or less.

It's truly a labor and clothes saving invention. Washing will no longer be a hardship, and washing day no longer a terror and a dread to housewives. The invention can be used in any boiler, and the low price of the article places it within the reach of every family.

The saving in the wear of clothes will soon pay for the outfit. It is estimated that 200 to 300 gallons of boiled suds pass through the clothes in thirty minutes; thus being the longest time required for cleaning a boiler full of clothes.

Hundreds of these Boilers are being sold each week, giving perfect satisfaction. Every boiler sold guaranteed to do all we claim, or money refunded.

The undersigned, as Agent for J. R. Hunter & Co. of Portsmouth, Va., (who have the right for this State) has commenced the Manufacture of these Boilers and will furnish the citizens of (Tray) and Chatham, and will, as stated above, take back and refund money for any Boiler which fails to give perfect satisfaction, and do all claimed for it.
